BURNED TO DEATH

IN HUT AT MASSAPEAG.

John N. Strang Perished and Only His Charred Skeleton Found.

John Nelson Strang was burned to death Friday in a fisherman's hut on the bank of the Thames river at Massapeag. The first intimation that anything was wrong at the little hut was conveyed to Joseph Smith, who resides at Massapeag, the hut where the tragedy occurred being only a few rods from his house and being belonging to him between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, when he saw the hut blazing. He knew that Strang was probably in the building, but by the time he was aroused by the flames nothing could be done. As soon as possible the fire was extinguished and the charred body of Strang was found. Medical Examiner Dr. E. M. Fox of Uncasville was notified and gave permission for the remains to be interred.

Strang had been working for some time with Mr. Smith fishing and had passed the night at his dwelling place. When Mr. Smith was able to remove the ruins of the burned building only a part of the skeleton of Strang was found. His body being burned beyond recognition.

Strang was well known both in New London and Montville. For some time he had been employed by the Jones Bros. place in Massapeag. Strang has followed the water most of his life. In his earlier years he was a fisherman, he went about whaling vessels sailing from New London and later served as cook aboard several fishing boats. He had in a similar capacity on several light vessels, among these Brenton's reef and Bartlett's reef. He was well known to most of the old sailors and was a handy word and a helping hand for the old mariner.

Coroner Brown made an investigation of the affair and found it to be the result of an accident. Only the charred skeleton was found. Mr. Strang was here on a fishing trip. He often came and also among the old sailors. Captains Ellisha and Lorenzo R. Chipman of Groton recall the circumstance that he sailed on several whaling vessels and Captain Lorenzo remembered him well as being steward on the whaling schooner Frances Allen with Captain Chipman. He was a good steward, too, said Captain Chipman. These old salts were also of the opinion that Strang was a distant relative of several well known families in and around Montville. Thomas Strang, now a resident of Groton, is understood to be a full cousin.

EXPLANATION OF UNITED WORKERS

Public Told of the Grand Work the Organization is Doing Through Its Various Branches and Urged to Lend Its Generous Support.

A large number were present at the Sunday evening religious service at the Broadway church which was held there at 7.30 o'clock in the interests of the United Workers of America.

Rev. Edward S. Worcester, pastor of the church, was in charge of the meeting, and addresses were made during the course of the evening by Rev. R. C. Wright, pastor of the Central Baptist church; Principal Henry A. Tirrell, City Missionary C. Rev. Neilson Fox Carey delivered the concluding prayer and pronounced the benediction. The musical numbers comprised several hymns, which were sung by the choir and the members of the congregation, an anthem by the choir and a beautiful soprano solo, which was sung in fine voice by Mrs. Charles Tyler Barst.

The collection that was taken at the conclusion of the services amounted to $41.79.

Good Work of Organization.

Rev. R. C. Wright was the first speaker and in the course of his address he pointed out a few of the many good works the United Workers are doing through their various branches, and made a forceful and impassioned plea for every one of his hearers to take up the work of this organization.

Mr. Wright said that it was unnecessary for him to speak of the Rock Nook home or of the Sheltering Arms, as all are familiar with these places. He referred to the local employment agency, securing positions for those who are anxious for something to do, and accompanying those who are looking for help. He spoke of the sewing classes, where girls are taught to sew, and in other ways formed into better and more useful citizens.

The speaker referred to the system that was evident in all this work, spoke of the friendly attitude the people should always bear towards those who seek money for the carrying on of this work, and urged all to take it up seriously, consider it as a part of the work of the church, and the spirit of the Good Samaritan, do these things because we ought to do them.

Three Methods of Giving.

Principal Henry A. Tirrell was next speaker and in the course of his address he pointed out three methods of giving, namely, by the treasury, by the church, and by the individual.

He spoke of the treasury, where the people should always bear towards those who seek money for the carrying on of this work, and urged all to take it up seriously, consider it as a part of the work of the church, and the spirit of the Good Samaritan, do these things because we ought to do them.

He spoke of the church, where the people should always bear towards those who seek money for the carrying on of this work, and urged all to take it up seriously, consider it as a part of the work of the church, and the spirit of the Good Samaritan, do these things because we ought to do them.

He spoke of the individual, where the people should always bear towards those who seek money for the carrying on of this work, and urged all to take it up seriously, consider it as a part of the work of the church, and the spirit of the Good Samaritan, do these things because we ought to do them.

MISSING MAN MAY BE LOCATED IN MONTREAL.

Woman Advised to Write There for Advice—May-Pepper Vanderbilt Gives Other Messages.

May Pepper-Vanderbilt, who has frequently appeared here before at the Spiritual Academy, drew an attendance that filled that place to the limit. She spoke of the missing man, who was taken away from her, and gave spirit messages there on Sunday evening.

After the usual opening exercises, in which Rev. A. P. Blinn presided, Mrs. Vanderbilt spoke impressively upon the general topic of man's search for a message from the unknown, then proceeded to tell of her own experience, which was under the handicap of a bad cold. It was in an aggravated condition Sunday night, condition which she said might possibly prove fatal.

There was spice, sparkle and accuracy in Mrs. Vanderbilt's messages which contributed to the interest of her auditors, especially when she pronounced names and incidents recognized by some receivers and other of her auditors.

Among the striking incidents was the spirit message from a Boston man, who said he was a friend of Mrs. Vanderbilt's, and was now in a picture caused a lot of amusement by her audience, but was finally given advice about writing to Montreal to find out about a man who had disappeared. There was one message which was particularly interesting, which was a message from a man who was a senator and senator at Washington.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was often applauded, and concluded her communications after giving from 15 to 20 messages.

Intense Suffering

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A New Discovery, But Not a Patent Medicine.

The person who has adopted this method always believes that the greatest thing in the prevention of need rather than its relief.

Mr. Tirrell spoke of the splendid organization that these United Workers had adopted, and of the great amount of good they were accomplishing along many lines, and of what still remained for them to do. He exhorted in detail the different classes of people they had to deal with, and the manifold services they were called upon to render. He urged all of his hearers to help in this charity work, but told them to be discriminate in their giving, and asked them to trust the city mission.

The Club Work.

The club work, the methods employed, results obtained and the things that still need to be done, was told in a delightfully interesting manner by Miss Alice Hooper, the supervisor of clubs. She spoke at considerable length, but during the entire time she was speaking she held the strictest attention of her hearers. She said that we all could not be missionaries and go to labor in foreign fields, but we could do the work that was waiting to be done in our own doors, and in this she had in mind the duty we owe to the vast host of foreigners that are coming to our shores annually. It is our duty to care for them, and it is just such that we can do. But no one whose heart does not beat with a sympathetic thrill for all classes and conditions, need attempt to do this task up. The patronizing air has no place here.

Miss Hooper told of the number of children who had registered during the past season, described what had been accomplished by them in different places, and told in brief of the cost of carrying out this work. She said that among the cities of New England, Norwich took a place in the front rank as far as charities was concerned. We were, however, a branch in Greenville, where there are located so many people of the Polish family that need our attention.

She spoke of several individual cases that had come under her personal attention by way of illustration, showed in a convincing manner the need for this work, and concluded by saying that there was no better way by which Americans could save the nation than by educating and Christianizing the people right at their doors.

Dr. Redwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable case of acute stomach trouble and chronic dyspepsia by the use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: "The patient was a man who had suffered, to my knowledge, for years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create gas in the stomach. He had pains like rheumatism in the back, shoulder blades and limbs, fullness and distress after eating, poor appetite, and loss of flesh; the heart became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night."

"I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood remedies, but to no purpose. As an experiment I finally bought a 50-cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured. There was no more acidity or sour, watery risings, no bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he had gained between 10 and 15 pounds in weight of solid, healthy flesh."

"Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores, yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's line of remedies, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but fruit and vegetable essences, pure pepsin and Golden Seal."

Without any question they are the safest, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach, however slight or severe."

chairman of the state Sunday school association, New London county Sunday school union, a corporate member of the American board of commissioners of foreign missions. He was the first president of the Y. M. C. A., and when the Norwich City Mission was in existence he served for years as its president. In his long and useful life the work which stands out most prominently of this city. He was most cordially congratulated by his many friends on Sunday at reaching this milestone in such good health and vigor.
